DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 1/20/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The examiner agrees Finegold shows that "coil is wound around by using a winding jig, and the wound coil is removed from the winding jig and inserted into the core member" as shown in Figures 2-4. However, Finegold also uses the core members (310) for winding each of the coils (336-342) in Figures 5-7. The core members (310) are the stator field poles disclosed in column 7, lines 45-55. Therefore, the wound coils are not removed from the jig.

As a result, the rejection is still deemed proper and repeated hereinafter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Finegold (4,131,988).

Regarding claim 1, Finegold shows a motor (Figures 5-7) comprising:

- A plurality of coils (336-342);
- A plurality of core members (310), wherein each of the core members is used for winding each of the coils (Figures 5-7); and

- A fixing member (350), which fixes each of the plurality of coils using each of the plurality of core members.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 2-9 and 22-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Finegold in view of Kamata et al. (6,084,319).

Regarding claim 2, Finegold shows all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for said core member being formed from an insulating material.

Kamata et al. show the core member being formed from an insulating material for the purpose of reducing eddy current.

Since Finegold and Kamata et al. are all from the same field of endeavor; the purpose disclosed by one inventor would have been recognized in the pertinent art of the others.

It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to form the core member from an insulating material as taught by Kamata et al. for the purpose discussed above.

Regarding claims 3-9, 22, and 24, it is noted that Finegold and Kamata et al. also show all of the limitations of the claimed invention.

7. Claim 23 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Finegold in view of Silvaggio et al. (4,816,710)

Regarding claim 23, Finegold shows all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for a plurality of positioning portions.

Silvaggio et al. show a plurality of positioning portions (18) for the purpose of retaining the field poles in place.

Since Finegold and Silvaggio et al. are all from the same field of endeavor; the purpose disclosed by one inventor would have been recognized in the pertinent art of the others.

It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to add more positioning portions as taught by Silvaggio et al. for the purpose discussed above.

Conclusion

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
